Morgan Sindall Construction & Infrastructure achieves gold Mind Workplace Wellbeing Award

Morgan Sindall Construction & Infrastructure has been recognised with a gold award for its commitment to workplace wellbeing.

The company was one of 106 organisations to take part in Mind's third annual Workplace Wellbeing Index, and was recognised with a Gold Award, meaning they are achieving excellence within their workplace.

Martin Worthington, SHEQ director at Morgan Sindall Construction & Infrastructure, said: "The mental health and wellbeing of our employees is incredibly important to us, and we are delighted to have achieved this gold award in recognition of our commitment. From informal initiatives such as break time table tennis competitions, to specialist mental health first aider training, our investment in wellbeing is proving beneficial. Having partnered with Mind since the outset of the Index, it is heartening to see our progression to this point."

Mind's Workplace Wellbeing Index is a benchmark of best policy and practice, celebrating the good work employers are doing to promote and support positive mental health, and providing key recommendations on the specific areas where there is room to improve.

The event took place at the Ham Yard Hotel in Central London. The ceremony was hosted by TV Presenter and Mind Ambassador Anna Williamson.
